It is located in the center of Andover, Massachusetts, on Massachusetts Route 140. The school is located about five minutes away from Andover Airport. St. Thomas More Academy was founded in 1971. History St. Thomas More Academy was founded in 1971 as a boys school by the Basilian Fathers. In 1973, the school began to accept girls. Over the next few years, the school grew and it was accepted into the Center of the Center Schools, a consortium of over 30 area schools. In the next two decades, the school slowly declined, although enrollment continued to increase. In 1995, the school was merged with Sacred Heart Academy to create a new school, St. Thomas More College Preparatory School. In 1998, the Basilian Fathers transferred all of their Catholic Schools to the Archdiocese of Boston. However, STMA remained a private school until 2008 when it was bought by St. Thomas More Academy, Inc., a corporation operated by the Archdiocese of Boston. Since then, the school has gone through expansion in both the physical structure and curriculum. Background STMA is a college-preparatory, Catholic, college-bound school that emphasizes the practice of the Dominican tradition of education and the Catholic teaching on human dignity, nobility of character, service to others, and the pursuit of excellence. Buildings The school is located on 12 acres of land. The campus includes four buildings: Lower School, Middle School, Upper School, and the main school building. The Lower School, which used to be the West Wing of the Basilian College, is the oldest building on campus. It was built in 1904. In 1959, the West Wing became the Lower School.
