Set a hotkey to trigger the Date Creator, and add date and time automatically. Installation: In the "File" menu choose "Add/Remove Programs" and search for "Date Creator". Run the "Date Creator" executable and follow the instructions. Make sure you set the hotkey for "Date Creator" to one of the predefined hotkeys, such as "CTRL-ALT-Y". How to install: Copy the "Date Creator" executable and paste it into your %AppData% directory. Alternatively, you can create a shortcut on the desktop and type "Date Creator" into the "Target" field, i.e. "C:\Users\User\Desktop\Date Creator.lnk". Usage: Select a text field, click on "Date Creator" and enter a date format (e.g. "MM-dd-yyyy") and hotkey (e.g. "CTRL-ALT-Y" for "yyyy-mm-dd") to automatically add the date to the text field. To change the text field, click on "Date Creator" again and select another text field. If you have not manually modified the hotkey, clicking on "Date Creator" will insert the current date automatically. To add the time as well, enter a time format (e.g. "hh:mm") in the "Add Time" text field and a time format (e.g. "hh:mm") in the "Add Time as..." text field. The current time is inserted as default. To change the time format and hotkey, follow the steps outlined in the "Settings" window. As a young professional, you need a smart tool for recording your time so you don't spend an extra hour processing your invoice. The Invoiced plugin from InColor is one of them. This simple tool is designed to streamline the time recording process. It's got a default clock on the side and a column on the top. All you have to do is type the hours and minutes from the clock and they'll be placed in the record. There are a few options you can choose from, including the possibility to record activities and projects along with time. This way you'll be able to create an invoice for a project or an event without having to worry about the hours spent. How can I add the invoice directly to my Projects? If you 77a5ca646e

Date Writer is a simple utility that can automate adding the current date inside a document, an email, or any other text field. It can come in handy to those who work with virtual documents, allowing them to insert the current date without having to type it in manually. Deployment is a breeze and, upon the first launch, Date Writer displays a visually-appealing tutorial to help you understand how everything works. The application runs in the system tray, waiting for a new command to insert the current date. Choose the date format and change the hotkey to your convenience Designed to be as straightforward as possible, Date Writer does not come with too many configuration options. However, before you start, it is recommended you go to the 'Settings' window to configure the date format, as there are so many forms to write a date. Some of the formats include just the date, while others also insert the current time. If you are not satisfied with any of the available choices, you can also add your own custom format. There is only one other option you can tamper with, that of changing the hotkey for inserting the date. Unfortunately, the default 'CTRL-ALT' combination cannot be modified, so you can only choose a letter instead of the default one, 'D'. A functional but minimalistic and uncreative application Date Writer does its job as promised and works with any text editor or field that supports text. However, it does not bring something new to the table, and its functionality can be replaced by any text snippet manager where you put the current date as an input. Adding another item on the cons list, it does not allow you to add any other date but the current one, which would be very easy with a text snippet manager.
